Northwestern | Council on Language Instruction

Council on Language Instruction

Excellence in Language Teaching Award

The Council on Language Instruction is seeking nominees for the 2026-27 Excellence in Language Teaching Award.

Do you have a colleague who…

- creates and maintains a learning environment in the classroom that allows students to find a personal connection to the target language and culture?
- experiments with different technologies, techniques and methodologies that effectively engage the students in and outside of class?
- inspires students in their studies of language, literature and culture and has a reputation for helping students to achieve?
- is known for sharing teaching ideas, materials and strategies?
- maintains a positive and supportive demeanor that helps to create community within the department?
- is always ready to help on projects in the department, college or university?
- sets high goals and works tirelessly to achieve them?

In other words…
Do you have a colleague who deserves commendation?

Nominate your colleague for the Excellence in Language Teaching Award!

Application information at https://www.cli.northwestern.edu/faculty-awards-accomplishments/cli-excellence-in-language-teaching-award.html

Send nominations to Daniela Pozzi Pavan (d-pavan@northwestern.edu) by Monday, January 11, 2027

Complete application dossier due by Monday, March 1st, 2027